The Music

ALEXANDRE TANSMAN'S POLISH RHAPSODY

Notes by TŌN horn player Stefan Williams

Matt Dine

The Composer

Alexandre Tansman was a Polish composer, pianist, and conductor. He studied law in addition to music, but his professional life was that of a musician. In 1919, he won the first composition competition in Poland following its independence from the Russian Empire. This served as a springboard for his career with a series of concerts with the Warsaw Philharmonic and nearly a decade of international touring following his win. He was approached by founding members of Les Six, a group of composers reacting with neoclassicism to romanticism and impressionism, to convince him to join the group. He refused out of a desire to retain his independence, but would nonetheless remain a staunch advocate for neoclassicism.

Protesting the Nazis

While he was enjoying international success, his music was not performed as widely in Poland. This was likely a result of increasing anti-semitic sentiment, as Tansman's family was of Lithuanian-Jewish ancestry. It was in response to the Polish government's collaboration with the Nazi regime that in an act of protest he renounced his Polish citizenship before becoming a naturalized French citizen in 1938. Despite that, he never severed his cultural ties to Poland, firmly believing himself belonging within Polish culture.

The Music

Written following the Nazi invasion of Poland, his Polish Rhapsody was dedicated to the defenders of Warsaw during World War II. He utilized quotes from the Polish national anthem, which symbolized the Polish state in an effort to evoke patriotic meaning. Additionally, he divided the work through tempo markings in the style of traditional Polish dances (e.g. Tempo di polonaise, Tempo di mazurka, Tempo di mazur), notably the mazurka, which was the national dance of Poland. He was quoted in the dedication to have said “Poland has not yet perished, so long as we still live. What the alien force has taken from us, we shall retrieve with a sabre.”

JOSEF TAL'S EXODUS

Notes by TÖN violinist Zeyi Sun

Matt Dine

Longing for a Homeland

Exodus for baritone and orchestra is a compelling composition by the renowned Israeli composer Josef Tal. This work, created in 1941, is a notable example of Tal's ability to blend music with historical and cultural narratives. The piece reflects the tumultuous period of Jewish history leading up to the establishment of the state of Israel. Composed during World War II, it carries a profound historical significance. Exodus explores the theme of exile and return, resonating with the Jewish narrative of dispersion and longing for a homeland.

The Music

Tal's composition showcases his distinctive musical style, which blends elements of neoclassicism with modernist techniques. This work is characterized by expressive melodies, intricate harmonies, and a thoughtful orchestration that complements the narrative. The music often combines dramatic and introspective passages, capturing the emotional depth of the subject matter. Exodus tells a powerful narrative through music and lyrics. It draws inspiration from the biblical book of Exodus and other Jewish historical and literary sources. The baritone soloist takes on the role of a storyteller, recounting the journey of the Jewish people, their struggles, hopes, and the dream of returning to their homeland. The music serves as a powerful emotional backdrop to this narrative, conveying a sense of longing, resilience, and ultimate redemption.

WALTER KAUFMANN'S INDIAN SYMPHONY

Notes by TÖN flutist Chase McClung

Matt Dine

Fleeing to Mumbai

Walter Kaufmann's Indian Symphony was inspired by the composer's time spent in India. He was a Czech-Jewish composer who fled to Mumbai in 1934 to escape Nazi Europe. During his time there, he founded the Bombay (Mumbai) Chamber Music Society and, through a work connection, ended up teaching violin to Zubin Mehta, one of India's most highly esteemed classical conductors today.

From Confusion to Adoration

Kaufmann's first experiences with traditional Indian music were negative; he did not understand its theory and believed what he heard was "alien and incomprehensible." With his background attending the German University in Prague for his Ph.D. in musicology, he went on to study traditional Indian music to understand its beauty. He wrote studies detailing traditional North and South Indian ragas, which serve as melodic frameworks for improvisation in traditional Indian music. Kaufmann's time in India began as a story of Jewish survival during Nazi Germany and bloomed into a love story for the composer understanding India's traditional music.

Indian Influence

In India, Kaufmann's most recognizable musical contribution is a short tune that played on the All India Radio every dawn. Millions tuned in to early-morning broadcasts which began with Kaufmann's composition. During the 13 years he spent working at All India Radio, Kaufmann observed performances from some of India's best classical musicians, and this in turn inspired his writing. His Indian Symphony shows Kaufmann's Indian musical influence through its exploration of textures between strings and winds playing melodies in unison, and via energetic rhythms in its finale that are reminiscent of the complex, fast rhythms found in Indian percussion music.

MARCEL RUBIN'S SYMPHONY NO. 4, DIES IRAE

Notes by TÖN violinist Judith Kim and TÖN violist Sydney Link

Matt Dine

The Composer

In his early years, the Viennese composer Marcel Rubin called many places home, collecting influence from the cultures he encountered. After brief studies with Franz Schmidt, he fled the Nazis by emigrating first to Paris, where he studied with Darius Millhaud, and later to Marseille. After his time in France he went to Mexico City, where he was a rehearsal coach at the opera while also using the opportunity to direct and perform his own compositions. Rubin returned to Austria in 1947, once the war had finished, and he continued to compose and critique music. His creative output was prolific and diverse. Unlike other German composers of his time, Rubin's style focuses on rhythmic sequences and melodic lines instead of intricate harmonies.

A Reflection of War

During his time in Mexico, between 1943

and 1945, Rubin composed his Fourth Symphony, which would later bear the title Dies irae, or judgment day. The “Dies irae” is a sequence of the Roman Requiem Mass for the dead, and is commonly included in musical Requiems, such as those by Mozart and Verdi. This symphony became a reflection of his World War II experiences. In early versions of the symphony, its first two movements depicted the horrors of war, while the subsequent two movements evoked the dream of peace, thus earning it its original title, War and Peace. He would later discard the two positive movements and replace them with a subdued pastoral movement, concluding contemplatively. The new title, Dies irae, draws a parallel between the war and the end of the world, invoking the Gregorian chant as the basis for the second and third movements.

The Music

The first movement is a funeral march inspired by Bertolt Brecht’s heart-wrenching ballad “Kinderkreuzzug 1939,” recounting the tragic story of lost and starving children facing a harsh winter. In the score Rubin included four stanzas of Brecht’s poem, which can be found on the following page. A solo viola voices a melancholic theme that crescendos into a sweeping orchestral entrance. After the main theme, a lively section unfolds as a central episode. The movement concludes with a nearly inaudible reprise of the main melody. The “Dies irae” second movement recollects the horrors of war. The movement begins with fanfares which precede the Dies irae-like main theme. This theme gradually fractures rhythmically, and brief moments of tranquility emerge through the solo violin’s melody, offering fleeting glimpses of peace interrupted by dissonance. The influence of the Dies irae continues in the symphony’s muted pastoral ending. Variations lead to a serene flute passage concluding with a lingering question, inviting contemplation and the possibility of a brighter future.

Text & Translation

The following four stanzas of Bertolt Brecht’s poem “Kinderkreuzzug 1939” (“Children’s Crusade 1939”) appear in the score of Marcel Rubin’s Symphony No. 4, “Dies irae”. The English translation is by Hans Keller.

Schnee fiel, als man sich's erzählte in einer östlichen Stadt
von einem Kinderkreuzzug, der in Polen begonnen hat.

Snow fell as they told one another,
there in an Eastern town,
about a children’s crusade:
deep in Poland, wand’ring round.

Da trippelten Kinder hungernd in Trüpplein hinab die Chausseen und nahmen mit sich andere, die in zerschossenen Dörfern stehn.

Lost children were scuttling, hungry;
in little formations were seen.
There they gathered with others,
standing where villages once had been.

Sie wollten entrinnen den Schlachten,
dem ganzen Nachtmahr,
und eines Tages kommen
in ein Land, wo Frieden war...

They wanted to fly from the fighting,
let the nightmare cease;
and one fine day they’d come upon a land where there was peace.

Wo einst das südöstliche Polen war
bei starkem Schneewehen hat man die fünfundfünfzig zuletzt gesehn.

Where once the south-east of Poland was,
in raging blizzard keen,
there were our five-and-fifty last to be seen.

THE ORCHESTRA NOW

David DeNee

The Orchestra Now (TÖN) is a group of vibrant young musicians from across the globe who are making orchestral music relevant to 21st-century audiences by sharing their unique personal insights in a welcoming environment. Hand-picked from the world's leading conservatories—including the Yale School of Music, Shanghai Conservatory of Music, Royal Academy of Music, and the New England Conservatory of Music—the members of TÖN are enlightening curious minds by giving on-stage introductions and demonstrations, writing concert notes from the musicians' perspective, and having one-on-one discussions with patrons during intermissions.

Conductor, educator, and music historian Leon Botstein, whom The New York Times said "draws rich, expressive playing from the orchestra," founded TÖN in 2015 as a graduate program at Bard College, where he is also president. TÖN offers both a three-year master's degree in Curatorial, Critical, and Performance Studies and a two-year advanced certificate in Orchestra Studies. The orchestra's home base is the Frank Gehry-designed Fisher Center at Bard, where it performs multiple concerts each season and takes part in the annual Bard Music Festival. It also performs regularly at the finest venues in New York, including Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, and others across NYC and beyond. HuffPost, who has called TÖN's performances "dramatic and intense," praises these concerts as "an opportunity to see talented musicians early in their careers."

The orchestra has performed with many distinguished guest conductors and soloists, including Leonard Slatkin, Neeme

Järvi, Gil Shaham, Fabio Luisi, Joan Tower, Vadim Repin, Hans Graf, Peter Serkin, Naomi Woo, Gerard Schwarz, Tan Dun, and JoAnn Falletta. Among TÖN's many recordings are albums featuring pianists Piers Lane, Anna Shelest, and Orion Weiss; Buried Alive with baritone Michael Nagy, which includes the first recording in almost 60 years—and only the second recording ever—of Othmar Schoeck's song-cycle Lebendig begraben; Classics of American Romanticism, featuring the first-ever complete recording of Bristow's Arcadian Symphony; and the soundtrack to the motion picture Forte. Recordings of TÖN's live concerts from the Fisher Center can be heard on Classical WMHT-FM and WWFM The Classical Network, and are featured regularly on Performance Today, broadcast nationwide.

Appearances: Brevard Music Center, 2014; Aspen Music Festival, 2022

What do you think orchestra concerts should look like in the 21st century? A much more casual, relaxed environment akin to concerts of other genres

Which composer or genre of music do you feel you connect with most? Any of the Romantics like Brahms, Bruckner, Mahler, or Strauss

What is your favorite piece of music, and why do you love it? Schoenberg arranged Brahms' Piano Quartet No. 1 for orchestra. It's evocative of both of the composers in the best ways possible, while everyone in the orchestra gets something fun to do at some point.

Favorite non-classical musician or band: Stereolab, Caravan Palace

If you could play another instrument, what would it be? Probably the oboe

Tell us something about yourself that might surprise us: I have aphantasia, so my ability to visualize is extremely limited.

EMMA CHURCHILL cello

Matt Dine

Emma will talk briefly about Marcel Rubin's Symphony No. 4, "Dies irae," on stage before the performance.

Hometown: Newton, MA

Alma maters: Oberlin Conservatory of Music, Shepherd School of Music at Rice University

Appearances: Orchestra of the Americas, Bowdoin Music Festival, Orford Musique, Cremona International Music Academy

What is your earliest memory of classical music? I grew up in a musical household and my earliest memories are of being brought to concerts and recitals.

When did you realize you wanted to pursue music as a career? At age 17 I went on a youth orchestra tour in Europe. After a particularly special performance in the Concertgebouw, that was the moment I knew I wanted to try and pursue a career in music.

What has been your favorite experience as a musician? Music has given me the opportunity to meet and learn from so many incredible musicians and people, from school to traveling and having the chance to do side-by-sides with other students in other countries has been really special.

Favorite non-classical musician or band: Listening to the likes of Earth, Wind & Fire; The Beatles; and Frank Sinatra will always make me feel better.

Tell us something about yourself that might surprise us: I have an identical twin sister who is pursuing a career in classical violin on the opposite coast, in San Francisco.

Piece of advice for a young classical musician: If this is something you really love, stick with it! It's a wild ride, but the people you meet along the way and are able to learn from or collaborate with makes it all worth it!

Fisher Center

The Fisher Center develops, produces, and presents performing arts across disciplines through new productions and context-rich programs that challenge and inspire. As a premier professional performing arts center and a hub for research and education, the Fisher Center supports artists, students, and audiences in the development and examination of artistic ideas, offering perspectives from the past and present as well as visions of the future. The Fisher Center demonstrates Bard's commitment to the performing arts as a cultural and educational necessity. Home is the Fisher Center for the Performing Arts, designed by Frank Gehry and located on the campus of Bard College in New York's Hudson Valley. The Fisher Center offers outstanding programs to many communities, including the students and faculty of Bard College, and audiences in the Hudson Valley, New York City, across the country, and around the world.

Bard College

Founded in 1860, Bard College is a four-year, residential college of the liberal arts and sciences located 90 miles north of New York City. With the addition of the Montgomery Place estate, Bard's campus consists of nearly 1,000 parklike acres in the Hudson River Valley. It offers bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, and bachelor of music degrees, with majors in nearly 40 academic programs; advanced degrees through 13 graduate centers; eight early colleges; and numerous dual-degree programs nationally and internationally. Building on its 163-year history as a competitive and innovative undergraduate institution, Bard College has expanded its mission as a private institution acting in the public interest across the country and around the world to meet broader student needs and increase access to liberal arts education. The undergraduate program at the main campus in upstate New York has a reputation for scholarly excellence, a focus on the arts, and civic engagement. Bard is committed to enriching culture, public life, and democratic discourse by training tomorrow's thought leaders. For more information about Bard College, visit bard.edu.

Land Acknowledgment for Bard College in Annandale-on-Hudson

Developed in Cooperation with the Stockbridge-Munsee Community

In the spirit of truth and equity, it is with gratitude and humility that we acknowledge that we are gathered on the sacred homelands of the Munsee and Muhheaconneok people, who are the original stewards of this land. Today, due to forced removal, the community resides in Northeast Wisconsin and is known as the Stockbridge-Munsee Community. We honor and pay respect to their ancestors past and present, as well as to future generations, and we recognize their continuing presence in their homelands. We understand that our acknowledgement requires those of us who are settlers to recognize our own place in and responsibilities towards addressing inequity, and that this ongoing and challenging work requires that we commit to real engagement with the Munsee and Mohican communities to build an inclusive and equitable space for all.

Diversity, Equity & Inclusion

The Bard College music community celebrates its wide-ranging approaches to musical studies by emphasizing creative expression and the development of each individual's artistic voice. Our programs include:

- The Undergraduate Music Program (classical instrumental and voice, composition, electronic music, ethnomusicology, history, jazz, theory)
- The Conservatory of Music (composition, conducting, instrumental, US-China, voice)
- The Orchestra Now

Historically, classical music education has foregrounded European practices of the 17th through 20th centuries. As we become accountable for discriminations relating to that narrow focus, we affirm our intention to break down those boundaries of exclusion. Actionable steps towards equity include: the long term cultivation of a diverse faculty, staff, and student body that is inclusive of a diverse range of races, ethnicities, genders, and LGBTQ+ identities; the practice of respectful listening and communication within and between our programs; the regular review of curricula and their successful inclusion of multiple perspectives; the presentation of diverse musical programming that features and furthers collaborations across the Bard campus; and the forging of initiatives that engage with underserved communities and underrepresented populations. As we pursue these goals, we remain committed to taking actions that combat discrimination and racism in order to create a more diverse, equitable and inclusive program.
